HUTCHINSON JOINS THE BOEING FRENCH TEAM

Hutchinson becomes a member of the Boeing French Team, Boeing's network of strategic French industrial partners. A long-standing partner of the aircraft manufacturer, the French group supports Boeing's aerospace programs from three continents. This new milestone further strengthens a long-standing industrial partnership.

Established in 2005, the Boeing French Team brings together 18 French companies recognized for their innovation capabilities and technological expertise. Drawing on more than a century of experience in aerospace, Hutchinson brings a broad range of expertise across critical aircraft functions, including composite and metallic subassemblies, thermal and acoustic insulation blankets, air conditioning system ducts, auxiliary power unit isolators, anti-vibration mounts, seals and piping for sealing and fluid transfer applications.

Boeing works with more than 100 suppliers in France and invested $1.1 billion in the French aerospace industry in 2025. Hutchinson contributes to this ecosystem through its innovation capabilities, allocating 5% of its global revenue to R&D, and through its industrial footprint across 26 countries, including operations located close to Boeing's production sites in North America, Europe and North Africa.

"Joining the Boeing French Team reflects the strength of the partnership we have built with Boeing over the years and the contribution of our teams to its major programs. Hutchinson brings to this partnership a unique combination of expertise, strong innovation capabilities and an international industrial footprint. We now intend to build on these strengths to explore new opportunities for collaboration with Boeing" says Nicolas Orance, Senior Executive Vice-President Aerospace, Defense & Industry at Hutchinson.

Jean-Marc Fron, CEO Boeing France, states: "We are delighted to welcome Hutchinson to the Boeing French Team. Its commitment to excellence, recognized industrial capabilities and contribution to Boeing programs make it a natural addition to this community of trusted French partners. France remains a strategic country for Boeing's global supply chain, and Hutchinson's arrival further strengthens the exceptional ecosystem of French companies contributing to the success of our commercial and defense programs worldwide".

About Hutchinson

Hutchinson designs and delivers multi-material and multi-process solutions that address the most demanding industries, including Aerospace, Automotive and Industrial markets. The Group relies on strong scientific expertise in acoustics and vibration, sealing systems, fluid transfer and thermal management, sensing and actuation, protection and structural solutions, and power transmission.

For its Aerospace and Defense activities, Hutchinson operates 38 production sites worldwide and follows a local manufacturing strategy to remain close to customer needs. Its proven capability to industrialize and produce at scale, with high levels of responsiveness and reliability, enables the Group to meet the stringent requirements of the aerospace sector.

Hutchinson generated revenues of €5.0 billion in 2025 and employs 40,000 people across 26 countries.
